In some cases, animals may have a reaction to their vaccination. This may result in lethargy, swelling or tenderness around the injection site. If an intranasal vaccine was used, this can result in a runny nose or eyes. These reactions are generally mild and resolve within a few days. More serious reactions, though rare, can also occur. If you have any concerns you should contact us immediately. An animal is not considered immunized for at least 28 days after the initial or primary vaccination is administered.
